IN DEFENCE OF

EXAMINATIONS

(From the Gateway)

During a conversation with a member of the faculty while we were working home with him one afternoon this week, we were made to perceive a point in favor of examinations. Examinations result in examining, says this professor, and examining is a good thing because it prepares one for the examining that is necessary during life.

The professor's argument is unanswerable. Examinations are good because they result in examining, one must examine throughout life. What is life to a newspaper editor but a continuous round of editorial writing under pressure at the last minute? What is life to a literary critic but an endless round of books to be read and reviewed before a set deadline? What is life to an architect but plans to be drawn in haste that should be done slowly? To an artist and designer, whether paintings or drawings to be ready to the managing staff? To the statesman, but matters to be thrashed out immediately while the time is ripe? Or to the factory worker but so many articles to be processed in a given time?

Even in the matter of marriage we must exist, for we are seldom ready financially to establish ourselves as soon as we are emotionally ready. And the matter of death. What is life insurance but a financial examining against the final deadline?

Life in this modern world is one wild rush. We are all rushing and cramming. So what better training can there be for this lifetime of continual cramming than the semiannual cramming that the university student must perform in order to pass his examinations? He may be as ignorant as ever two days after the examination, but he has learned to work under pressure. It will be easier for him to make a living. If his nerves can't stand it, that's his bad luck.

No, those who object to examinations on the ground that they lead to cramming must attack not examination, but the whole system of modern life which works in the same fashion. Whether they can do anything about it, however, is a different matter.

N. B.—The validity of the above is of course dependent on what is one's education on an old age cleavage of thought—What is the aim of Education? What is Utility?

Here are two quotations from "The Higher Learning in America" by Dr. Hutchins, President of Chicago University.

"One purpose of education is to draw out the elements of our common human nature. These elements are the same in any time or place. The notion of educating a man to live in

LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just stays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Headaches and the world looks queer.

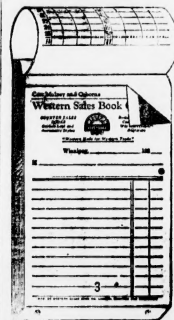

A liver-based movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It flows those good, old pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Healthy and quick. They make the bile flow freely. They do the work of nature but have no need of mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Strathmore please specify size, 25c.

any particular time or place, to add just him to any particular environment is therefore foreign to a true conception of education."

The trouble with the popular notion of utility is that it confuses immediate and final ends. In other words it entirely neglects the future for the present. It takes an extremely short range view.

NEWS NOTES

Major Murray's Radio Plan is a wisdom of his appointment as President of the C. B. C.

Husbands had to do
The Housework—

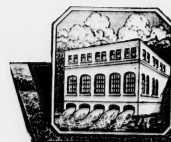

DOES Friend Husband use the quill pen of the nineties, make his journeys with a horse and buggy, work with out-of-date tools or use his brain for an adding machine? He does not! He uses up-to-the-minute labor-saving, time-saving and money-saving devices.

Put Friend Husband doing housework and what would happen? The bugbears of household drudgery would vanish in quick time. There would be more Electric Ranges, Refrigerators, Vacuum Cleaners, Washing Machines, Ironers, Floor Polishers, and smaller appliances installed in a few months than in all time past.

Friend Husband wouldn't worry about the increase in his electricity bill either! He would know that the savings in labor and time would more than pay for the cost of electricity used.

You'll find it to your own advantage to take hints from the business methods of your husband, to help you in the management of your home!

Forty candidates wrote departmental examinations in 196 units. They were successful in 157 units or 39 per cent.

Extra-curricular activities have been carried on as in former years, although the Christmas Concert has been dropped for the past two years. Personally I regret this. The school Fair was probably the best ever held.

The scope of the Annual Inter-school Sports Day has been enlarged so as to link up with Gleichen, Brooks, Basanau and territory adjacent to these towns. From the whole district there will be entrance in this year's Provincial Junior Amateur Meet.

Owing to prevalent epidemics and by the advice of the Provincial Department of Health the Musical and Dramatic Festival had to be cancelled.

Of last June's High School graduates Nick Chamberlain, Raymond Bower and Andrew Taylor are attending the Normal School in Calgary. Wilfred Archibald and Don Nichol are undergraduates at the University of Alberta.

An outstanding honor came to one of our ex-graduates when it was announced that Jack Garrett was this year's Alberta Reader Scholar. He will be leaving for Oxford University this fall.

The School Board has, as usual, encouraged the students in a variety of ways. This year, in addition, it
